Memorandum regarding the probable amount of monsoon rainfall in 1954

Previous weather conditions over certain parts of the world enable us to form an estimate, within somewhat wide limits, of the monsoon rainfall of India during the period June to September. These predictions aim to pass a statistical test of 80 per cent. success, or, in other words aim at being correct four times out of five on the average over a long series of years.

The data used are given in section 2 below; these are followed by notes on the relevant inferences that may be drawn from them.

2. DATA

Snow in the mountain region northwest of India.—Available snow-fall reports indicate that over the western Himalayas the accumulations at the end of May were slightly above normal.

Java.—The monthly rainfall departures from October 1953 to February 1954 were —86 per cent., 0, —17 per cent., —1 per cent. and +15 per cent. respectively.

Equatorial pressure.—Pressure was in defect by 0.002 in. at Port Darwin in March to May was in excess by 0.013 in. at Seychelles in February and March and in defect by 0.027 in. at Djakarta from January to April.

South Rhodesia.—Rainfall from October 1953 to April 1954 was in defect by 4.6 in.

South America.—Pressure departures were as follows:—

	Buenos Aires	Cordoba	Santiago (Chile)
April 1954	+0.4 mm.	+0.4 mm.	+0.7 mm.
May 1954	—0.9 mm.	—0.3 mm.	—

Aleutian Islands.—The monthly temperature departures in degrees Fahrenheit at Dutch Harbour from December 1953 to April 1954 were +1.2, —2.6, —5.8, +0.9 and +0.2.

3. INFERENCES FROM THE INFORMATION

For the Peninsula [taken to consist of Gujarat, Saurashtra and Kutch, the Konkan, Deccan (Desh), Madhya Pradesh, Hyderabad and the Coastal Andhra-desa] the available factors found to be of most importance are, in the order of decreasing reliability, rainfall in South Rhodesia, pressure in South America, temperature at Dutch Harbour and rainfall in Java. Of the factors, South Rhodesia rain and Java rain are very favourable, Dutch Harbour temperature is moderately favourable and South American pressure slightly favourable. The statistical analysis indicates that there is a four to one chance that the monsoon rainfall during June to September 1954 in the Peninsula will be above 101 per cent. of the normal.

For Northwest India [taken to consist of the west Uttar Pradesh, the Punjab (I) (including PEPSU and Delhi, and Rajasthan)] the factors used are, in the order of decreasing reliability, South Rhodesia rainfall, Equatorial pressure, South American pressure, temperature at Dutch Harbour and Snow accumulations in the western Himalayas. Of these, South Rhodesia rain is very favourable, Equatorial pressure moderately favourable and the remaining three factors are indifferent. The statistical analysis indicates that there is a four to one chance that the monsoon rainfall in Northwest India during June to September 1954 will be above 91 per cent. of the normal.

4. SUMMARY OF FORECAST

The monsoon rainfall during June to September 1954 is likely to be normal or slightly above normal in the Peninsula and about normal in Northwest India.
